

RANDOLPH-MACON WINS IN SLOW GAME

Takes Second of Championship Games From William and Mary.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Ashland, Va., April 17.—Randolph-Macon College won her second championship game of the season yesterday, in a slow contest with William and Mary. The game was characterized by just such a let down as she allowed in the last inning of the Richmond College game last Thursday. The final score was 7 to 3.

In the fourth inning, Alfriend gave way to Johnston in the pitcher's box just in time to prevent an impending landslide.

In the second inning, Carroll scored for the home team on a wild pitch and two free bases filled the bases, whereupon Alfriend failed to tighten up, and allowed Smith to take a free, forcing Rowe home. In the fourth Smith flew to left garden, Steward took his base, Smith followed with a single, and Beville tapped out on the same sort, making second on a fielder's choice, and scoring. Trichard, Goodwin threw wild home plate, and Smith and Beville completed the circuit. Gillette singled out second baseward, scoring Hite and Carroll, and Nolley swung manfully, but failed to reach Johnston, who had now taken the slab for the visitors. In the fifth, sixth and seventh, Randolph-Macon went out in one, two, three order.

William and Mary gathered together in the last chapter, landing on Smith or three singles and a two-bagger, so drawing one free pass. The visitors scored all their runs after two men were down, but Smith's weakening was due to the fact that he had just come out of a contest with Richmond two days previous.

In the fourth, Nolley made a spectacular catch, invading right field to do so, in the same inning Collins pulled down a long fly from Smith's bat into extreme left field.

FAST GAME LOST BY FULTON SKREEMERS

Collegians Score Twice, While Fitzpatrick Holds Opponents to No Score.

In a well played game at Byrd Park Saturday afternoon the Richmond Collegians and little difficulty in administering a defeat to the Fulton Skreemers by the score of 2 to 0. The feature of the game was the pitching of Fitzpatrick, who allowed but three hits and struck out fourteen. Bowers, for the losers, twirled a very creditable game. The Collegians showed by their work on the bases and at the bat, to have reached good shape, and with the addition of several new men should easily trim the best of the amateurs around Richmond. Clarke and Richardson, for the Collegians, and Anderson, for the Skreemers, played the best game for their respective sides.

THE BITULITHIC PAVEMENT

A Concise Description---And Nothing More Need Be Said.

In the efforts to provide a permanent roadway which would accommodate the necessities of increasing traffic conditions many forms of construction have been used, including wood block, brick, granite blocks, sheet asphalt, blocks made of combination of asphalt and sand, and pavements of concrete. All these various forms of construction, however, have fallen short of the qualities of the ideal pavement as established by such experts on road construction as Tillson and Baker.

"Municipal Engineering" is authority for the following table showing comparative merits of asphalt, brick and bitulithic with the ideal pavement based on standards from the authorities indicated:

"Street Pavements and Paving Materials," By Geo. W. Tillson

"Engineering Work in Towns and Small Cities" (a standard work by Ernest McCullough, formerly Consulting Engineer for the Merchants' Association of San Francisco), contains the following comments:

"The writer wishes to go upon record as saying that with honest workmanship and honest materials the bitulithic pavement in his opinion has a larger per cent. of desirable qualities than any material he is acquainted with. It approaches very nearly the ideal pavement."

"So far as the writer has had an opportunity to judge, and he has seen the pavement in many cities, the bitulithic pavement possesses all the advantages of asphalt with few of the disadvantages. Asphalt a few years ago was heralded as the ideal pavement under all conditions and for all places. To-day it must take a second or lower place."

The essential principles of bitulithic are the durability and resistance to destructive traffic and other conditions, which can be only secured through the use of mineral ingredients so combined as to have almost the compactness and resistance of solid stone. However, the solid stone would not be suitable because of its lack of resiliency and the absence of elasticity, the tendency to abrade and thus wear away under the influence of traffic. In bitulithic the desirable essential elements have been preserved and the weaknesses eliminated by the combination of various sizes of stone so mixed as to reduce the voids or interstices to a minimum, and these voids are filled with a waterproof elastic cement which produces the necessary ease of traction and at the same time binds the mineral ingredients permanently together.

In the construction of the bitulithic pavement the first step is to secure stone which is adapted to produce the best results. After careful inspection and laboratory tests to determine the porosity and friability of the stone, it is then determined what proportions of the varying sizes can be used to give that resistance known as inherent stability to a mixture of the various sizes. To the mineral ingredients in the predetermined proportions is added the bituminous waterproof cement in sufficient quantity to entirely fill the remaining voids.

The resulting mixture, combined and well heated to the proper temperature, is hauled to the street, and there, after careful laying to uniform grade, is thoroughly compacted under rollers with sufficient weight to force the component units into close juxtaposition with each other. The BITULITHIC pavement presents a pleasing appearance to the eye, affords an easy foothold to traffic, and is as durable as can be any form of street construction exposed to wear and tear of constant use and of the elements.
